As tiny North Newry church turns 100, Hut trail congregation dwindles to a handful

By ALISON ALOISIO

On Aug. 8, the Newry Community Church will observe 100 years of worship, but the early 21st century finds the tiny congregation wondering what the future holds.

One hundred years ago North Newry was a busy place in the summer, as visitors came to stay at places like the nearby Poplar Tav-

But the visitors are long gone, and with them many younger residents, who joined the decades-long exodus from rural Maine.

As a result, next month's anniversary will be a time to take both a nostalgic look backward and a hopeful, but uncertain, look forward.

History

Before 1904, the people of North Newry gathered at the Branch School House to worship. A minister traveled up from Newry Corner, which at the time had its own church. As time went by, some of the citizens felt North Newry should have its own church building. A student minister who was serving the congregation, Edville Roys, played a key role in moving the project forward, according to a church history compiled in 1954 by Carrie Wight.

Wight describes the fundraising for the new building: "Cash contributions were

'We are sad to say now that the Newry Church is very slightly attended. But God and His Son are still here. What better could we ask for?'

PASTOR RODNEY HANSCOM

solicited and the response was gratifying. One of the good ladies, Mrs. M.L. Thurston, approached a prominent man in Bethel who tried to discourage her, saying it was useless for the few people here to think of building a church. He told her that when she had raised a certain amount that he would match it. The story goes that in a few days he was asked to keep his promise.

"The subscriptions, though seemingly small today, were generous people giving according to their means. The subscribers included many who summered at the Poplar Hotel. The subscriptions totaled $890.29. This with the lumber, the labor ASSOCIATED PRESS and the untiring efforts of the the church.

"Much of the labor was volunteered and was done during the spring farming and the summer haying season. But the men gave unstintingly of their time."

Once built, the church served people from Newry as well as Upton, Wilson Mills and Magalloway. Bethel church ministers preached occasionally, as did student ministers.

The church also received financial support through the years from umbrella organizations representing a variety of denominations.

years. He grew up in North See CHURCH, page 4

steps closer to reality

After the raspberry thorns and old, sun-bleacned wood piles from some forgotten timber operation were left behind, the hot stones appeared like a staircase leading to a wilderness reprieve, maybe even a promised land.

On one of the larger boulders, Larry Warren stood and looked out to Old Speck Mountain and the rolling green hills to the north of Bethel.

Warren had never been to this remote spot.

But standing at the elevated plateau, Warren considered the site - and what could be. As president of the Western Mountains Foundation, he does that a lot.

After four years of work, Warren believes he is close to acquiring nearly 100 miles of a 180-mile multi-use trail that is expected to cut across Maine's western woodlands, offering generations to come a unique mountain path that will be connected by 12 sizable cabins for outdoor travelers trekking from the Mahoosuc mountains to Moosehead Lake. The Maine Huts and Trails system will cost $9 million. Warren said as much as $8 million of the total is expected to come from fundraising efforts.

The project is modeled after the Appalachian Mountain Club's rustic cabins in the White Mountains and Colorado's 10th Mountain Division retreats in the Rocky Mountains.

But the bold vision of such a long-distance hut-and-trail system is mostly unheard of in the United States.

'There are few hut-and-trail opportunities in North America. But they are prolific in Europe," Warren said. "The Norwegians have created a destination area. The Swedes do the same thing. But in the U.S., there are very few opportunities for people-pow-

MOLLYOCKETT DAY THANKS

To the Editor:

The Mahoosuc Arts Council would like to acknowledge and thank all of the individuals and businesses that contributed to making Mollyockett Day a wonderful day this year. The weather held until early evening and except for the parade's wrong turn, everything went well.

BethAnne Haines presided over the day's events as Princess Mollyockett. The crowning of Princess Mollyockett this year was done by former "Princesses" Jackie Schuesler, 1966 and Amy Gaidis, 2003.

All of the entrants in this year's "Folk and Fairy Tales" parade are to be commended for their efforts. Thanks to Chadbourne Tree Farms for being the parade sponsor, to Scott Cole and Peter Mason, for its coordination. "Princess" Mollyockett and her escort, Adam Tanguay, were transported by Jerry Greenwell.

If you enjoyed the entertainment that took place all day long on the common, you may thank the folks at The Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce, The Bethel Area Development Corp., The Bethel Inn & Country Club, Sunday River Golf Club, The Java House, The Kelleys, Norway Savings Bank, Oxford Networks, The Rotary Club of Bethel, Savage Contracting for their contributions.

The traditional fireworks display that caps off the day's events was made possible by Dick and Gretchen Rasor and Les and Chris Otten.

Local businesses also support Mollyockett Day by advertising in the annual Mollyockett Day booklet printed by Inman Printing. The artwork for the Mollyockett T-shirt design this year was provided by the father and son team of Tim Kavanagh and Cailin Kavanagh.

Congratulations to Brandy Cordwell, winner of the Mollyockett Day Treasure Hunt sponsored by the Bethel Citizen. Special thanks for helping with our popular fried dough booth and cleanup goes to Sunday River Ski Resort, Reggie Brown. Les Thurston and MainGas, George Lefebvre and the Mt. Ops crew, Susan and Wayne Duplessis, Julie Hart, Christine Liberti, Linda Gamble, Nanette Cramton, Michaela O'Brien, Martha and Kirk Siegel, Les and Chris Otten, Cindy Hiebert, Mame Connors, Helen and Chris Davies, Leslie Moore, Pat Donovan, and Becky and Wayne Cummings.

The first eyer Art irondack Chair Auction took place this year, directed by auctioneer David Murphy and volunteers. Joe and Joanna Drummond, Susan Herlihy, Cindy Millett and Gloria Arita.

Many bidders and onlookers including chairmaker, Reggie Brown, were on hand to witness their sale. Local artists who created these one-of-a-kind chairs were: Janet Black, Amy Chapman, Jewel Clark, Mame Connors, Gould Academy students, Ryoko Arai, Martina Vojtelova, Lauren Head, Cailin Kavanagh, Deb Lewis, Jim Mann, Sarah Shepley, Scott Smith, and Telstar Middle School students, Carey Boelsma, Britney Merrill, and Jessie Yasko.

Special thanks to the sponsors of the chairs whose support helped make the project possible: Café Di Cocoa Market & Bakery, Crossroads Diner & Deli, Designs, Finish Line Pizza, Hanley & Associates, Margaret Haberman, Mt. Mann, Pooh Corner Farm, Reggie Brown, Stone Mt. Mortgage, The Sudbury Inn. and Viewer's Choice Video. Behind the scenes providing essential support are: Blake MacKay, Pete Rackliffe, Jeff Sterling, Rebecca Ricker, Gould Academy's maintenance staff, D & E Sanitation, Doug Bennett & Son Septic Tank Cleaning Service, Olson's Tent Rentals, the Town of Bethel, and the Bethel Police Department.

We look forward to seeing you all on Mollyockett Day, Saturday, July 16, 2005.

NEWTON'S STORE (white building, center) circa 1910.

A REMARKABLE INSTITUTION AT BEAN'S CORNER

To the Editor:

To my mind, growing up in East Bethel in the 1940s and 1950s appears as an idyllic adventure. We had the East Bethel School, where in one room, Mina Stevens, then in her late sixties, so capably provided the basis for all later learning with few resources except her creativity and hard work. There was the historic East Bethel Church, where we attended Sunday School and later Vacation Bible School. We also kept a close eye on what went on at the East Bethel Cemetery, especially at Memorial time when the veterans came and fired their rifles to honor the dead. My father was the cemetery sexton, so I often helped him dig graves and fill in sinking lots. As a result, the children of my generation witnessed the cycle of life as citizens here had for generations, the birth of siblings and farm animals and in the end people of the community being laid to eternal rest at the cemetery after a busy life. Most of the residents of the community lived on farms and carried on a varied level of agricultural operations.

Few were very prosperous during that time in monetary terms, but we were wealthy with the quality of the people in the community and the experiences offered by country living. We spent much time building our forts in the woods, constructing tree houses in tall pines, swimming in Otter Brook, doing our farm chores, working in gardens and hayfields, picking berries in season, exploring cellar holes in the woods, and paddling our home-made boat around the pond across from our house. We had 4-H meetings, Grange suppers, family reunions, and neighborhood gatherings. On rainy days, we always had our books, games, toys and puzzles. We knew everyone in the vicinity and they were an essential part of our community experience.

The demolition of the former Newton's Store building at Bean's Corner in East Bethel last during World War II. week brings to mind all kinds of memories regarding a remarkable "institution" that left a vivid impression upon my early life. Maggie Newton operated the store from this location for approximately forty years (from the 1920s to the 1960s). During that time, she touched countless lives with her stories and humor. A plump lady with straight gray hair, she kept a store overflowing with merchandise. There was only a narrow path through the goods. One could cut his or her own cheese here, stop at the soft drink cooler for a root beer (my favorite in those days), or select penny candy. There was a wood stove with nail keg seats around it and a molasses tap to refill one's container. In back of the overloaded counter was a storage room where one time Maggie, while hunting for something else in the 1950s, found a quantity of socks she had bought thirty years earlier. There wasn't much she didn't carry if she could find it. Sometimes one waited ten or fifteen minutes while she tracked down the requested item.

In her role as storekeeper, Maggie heard lots of news and shared it with her customers. My father was a favorite of hers. He and Maggie would talk over all kinds of things while my brother Mollyockett 1974. and I waited impatiently. How many times we learned what was going on in the community from Maggie.

The store was also quite often a place we stopped at on our walk home from school for candy and sometimes things my mother asked me to pick up. Maggie was also one the first people in the community to own a television set. In the mid-1950s, she invited my brother and me to watch Transportation Co. trailer. "Howdy Doody" in her kitchen, which was just off the store. I recall many happy times taking Its destination was a Central in the adventuress of Howdy, Buffalo Bob, Mr. Bluster, and that famous clown.

Following the blizzard of '52, my father, brother, and I spent seemingly hours shoveling to get on Route 232 in Woodstock. the car out so we could go to Maggie's to buy valentine cards for our school friends. I vividly recall how high the banks were on that half mile to the store and how good it was to see Maggie Mrs. Vera Robbins. as a friendly face and enjoy the warmth of the store both physically and psychologically.

The following year, during the flood of '53, my father launched a boat from our neighbor's zens voted to build a new to get some necessary supplies at Maggie's since the Otter Brook bridge was washed out and the road was impassable. For a 9 year old, it was a heady trip through all the currents and raging waters to Maggie's. Nevertheless, visiting the store at that time was especially reassuring School. despite all the havoc. It was important to us that Maggie was still there and at least some part of the world as we had come to know it would always be secure and safe.

Regretfully, the store closed while I was in college. Maggie got sick and could not continue. Her son tried his hand at operating it, but never loved it the way his mother did. It soon ceased operations forever. Maggie lingered on until her death in 1970. I recall visiting her at least once during those years. Her humor and interest in people were still intact, but she was bedridden, which must have been especially painful for her as she was always active all her life. Finally, I remember attending an outdoor slide show on the lawn beside the store. I had never seen slides before and don't recall the exact topic, but recall views of East Bethel with several interior and exterior shots of Maggie and her store. How much I would like to see that show Fort Dix, N.J. for eight weeks again to refresh my memory of times past and renew ties with a childhood spent in a remarkable Stan Howe Bethel place with such unforgettable people as Maggie.

SHARE OUR HERITAGE AT THE FESTIVAL DU BOIS

To the Editor:

The Northern Forest Heritage Park is proud to tell the stories of the working forest and the rich cultural diversity found in our region. A dedicated group of volunteers has worked for months to produce a unique festival in celebration of the woods, arts, music, dance and the Franco-American culture. Dedicated community members, artists, staff and trustees this Saturday, July 24 are offering their time and talents to the community to perpetuate our rich cultural heritage.

This is an open invitation to all members of the Northern Forest communities to come together in a celebration of our forests, our heritage and the sharing of both with the next generation. The often forgotten quote, "It is the duty of the present to bring the voice of the past to the ears of the future," should be our inspiration. The many months of intense work is diluted if the youth of our communities does not attend. For the first time, young musicians will join in the Soiree Canadien at the Festival du Bois playing traditional tunes as passed to the next generation through the efforts of local Franco-American musician Bob Baillargeon.

The committee has developed a wonderful program for youngsters to find enjoyment in the day. From a scavenger hunt, face-painting, building twig boats, creating murals, arts and crafts, to the antics of Bobo the Clown, children will have fun. Children will be fascinated with a northern forest wildlife exhibit, Unique Preservation of Nature by Nash, and blacksmith demonstrations by Matt Emery. How many of us remember our family reunions as youth with our aunts and uncles picking up a fiddle, accordion or spoons to entertain us while our parents through the example of family fun taught us the art of clogging? The Festival du Bois offers us this unique opportunity to share our heritage with the next generation. Whether of Franco-American heritage or not, the heritage of family and communities coming together in celebration is universal.

The Northern Forest Heritage Park wants to encourage family participation in our programming. A modest admission of $10 for adults and $5 for children age 6-12 offers a full day of fun. Each child attending the festival will be issued a scenic heritage boat pass valued at $5 valid from July 27 through the end of the season. Parents and grandparents will then have a future opportunity to share the rich heritage stories of the Androscoggin River and the days of the log drives with their children and grandchildren. What better gift to give to our youth, than to share in the pride of their rich heritage?

Throughout the past months, many of you have asked, "How can we help the Park?". It is really quite simple. Join us for a fun-packed day at the Festival du Bois. Or join us for the Thursday afternoon Artist in the Garden Series, or the Thursday evening Fireside Lecture Series. Think of the Park as a destination when you have visitors for a Scenic Heritage Boat Tour or to visit the Logging Camp Interpretive Center and Brown Company House Museum. Think of the unique offerings of local artists and artisans in the Artisans Gift Shop when in need of gifts. Think of the Park as a possibility for hosting meetings, or chartering the boat for an outing with friends, family or business associates. Or, think of the Park for a tax-deductible donation to further perpetuate the stories of the forest and our rich heritage.

The Northern Forest Heritage Park is yours. It is a representation of your community, a beacon of light to share the true spirit of the region with the rest of the world. Each of us individually and together as a greater northern forest community can and will make a difference.

It will be an honor to see you and your families in celebration of our community and heritage at the Festival du Bois, on Saturday, July 24.

> Jean Boutin Administrator, Northern Forest Heritage Park, Berlin, NH

Lightning strikes village home

BETHEL — Lightning struck the home of Ted and Linda Davis in Bethel Village Tuesday morning, causing electrical damage. Ted Davis said lightning apparently hit a chain link fence that stretches around their backyard. The fence attaches to both ends of the house, and the current from the strike entered the home from both directions. At one end it blew off an asbestos shingle and entered the house, cracking the wall inside and destroyed a nearby television. At the other end, the lightning destroyed an electric garage door opener and a computer in the basement. There was no fire. The lightning struck during a strong storm accompanied by heavy rains.

Higher taxes for territory lakefront

ABBOT - Valuations of waterfront real estate in Maine's unorganized territories could rise by as much as 60 percent this year, spelling higher property taxes for owners of lakefront land, a state official says. Increases in this year's tax bills will be the first in a number of years to reflect the rising values of waterfront land in the unorganized territories, which encompass more than 10 million forested acres. "Waterfront values in the unorganized territories will be going up 15 percent to 60 percent depending upon which lake it is and what the market is doing in the area," according to Bob Doiron, who heads the unorganized territories property tax division of Maine Revenue Services. Nearly all properties in the unorganized territories were increased last year, Doiron said, but this is the first time in several years that waterfront property values have been increased in response to the market. To determine the new valuations, the state reviewed recent sales of similar properties and then estimated what properties most likely would sell for in a competitive marketplace. "We hope the new values are bringing us near the market value," Doiron said. "Our main concern isn't necessarily hitting 100 percent but getting the different classes of property (in the unorganized territories) in reasonable equity.

From the Bethel Police Log:

Saturday, July 17

At 12:48 a.m. Officer Ovide Richard responded to a business for a reported fight in the parking lot. A subject at the scene said a second subject had assaulted him. The second subject admitted he had pinned the first to the ground. Peter Gordon, 25, was given a citation for assault.

Friday, July 16

At 6:42 p.m. Officer Shane Thomas responded to a report of a vehicle driving erratically northbound on Songo Pond Road. The vehicle was located and stopped. A citation was issued to Drew S. Donabedian, 21, of North Conway, N.H. for possession of a usable amount of marijuana.

At 5:40 p.m. Officer Shane Thomas received a report that a county deputy was trying to stop a vehicle for operating at a high rate of speed northbound on Route 26. As the Bethel officer drove south, the deputy reported he was engaged in a high-speed chase, and shortly afterward the vehicle turned on to Route 232. The vehicle then crashed at the intersection of Gore Road and Route 232. The Bethel officer arrived on scene shortly after, along with several other county officers and a state trooper. After assisting with traffic, the Bethel officer cleared.

Thursday, July 15

At 8:11 a.m. Officer Phil Taylor responded to a report of suspicious mail at the Post Office. On arrival he was shown a package wrapped in brown paper, with a white granular substance leaking from it. The Fire Department had been called because it was unknown if the material was hazardous. The Bethel officer then drove to the location to which the package was addressed to notify the resident, who had recently moved to the area and did not yet have a phone. The resident came to the Post Office and opened the package to verify that it contained salt, which a relative had sent for cooking purposes. A dozen cardboard salt shakers had been packed among four large cans of food, and about half the salt containers were crushed during mailing. The package was released to the addressee.

"One way up (to the top of the ments. ridge), one halfway, and one dinky one for old ladies," she said.

The contract drawn up for the selectmen and Ring to sign stipulates improvements that include such plans as a parking lot and permanent outhouse facilities.

Ring said projects beyond those mentioned would constitute a breach of contract.

Selectman Ivan Roberts, director of the committee, said the earlier meeting's discussion had been just that discussion, with no decisions made to pursue grants or build other features.

"I want what Maggie wants," he said, and if she did not want to seek grants, he would respect that wish.

Committee member Ron Smith agreed. "We haven't voted on anything as a committee. We talked about other options," he said.

Newry and attended the church as a boy.

Hanscom took over as pastor in 1974. While he was in the Army during World War II, he had assisted Army chaplains with services and other duties. After returning to the Bethel area, he served in a similar capacity at the Bethel Methodist Church.

His first sermon at the Newry church, in early October 1974, was built around a favorite poem about Christopher Columbus. He read sections of the poem, tying them to various Biblical passages.

It was well-received, he said, and he was on his way to become the church's longestserving pastor. At that time, the congregation numbered about three dozen.

The years have included some memorable, and humorous, moments.

Hanscom recalls one woman who drove each Sunday from her home nearby to attend services. Her dog would often follow the car to the church and wait for her.

But one Sunday, the dog came in the back door of the church and came right up and sat beside me in the pulpit," said Hanscom. "Everyone thought that

It wasn't the only time he would be visited by a fourlegged parishioner.

"He stayed there through the whole service, and held. up traffic," remembers Hans-

In the 1980s, because of the shrinking membership and high heating costs, the church stopped meeting year-round. It now holds services from April through Thanksgiving.

Hanscom hopes the community church will find a way to carry on after he retires. For now, he takes it one Sunday at a time.

'We are sad to say now that the Newry Church is very slightly attended," he said. But God and His Son are still here. What better could we ask for?"

men Tuesday: "We never got swamped with subdivisions before, but now we are and everybody is; 'Duh?'"

The selectmen, planners and other town officials have met at least three times recently to discuss the matter, but the conversations have been rambling, unproductive and often confused, especially regarding actual ordinance requirements, procedures, and enforcement responsibilities.

"We have a pretty good ordinance," said Code Enforcement Officer John Gauthier, "but not having used it for years we don't know what's in it."

Road Foreman Alan Seames put the matter a bit more bluntly: "Nobody reads the ordinance," he complained.

As a result of the confusion, the application of the ordinance has been inconsistent, even a bit slack.

For example, the ordinance requires that the town fire chief sign off on all subdivision applications, but Chief Ray Seames said, "I've never been asked to sign off in all the years I've been doing this, The law was on the books but never applied.'

Seames said the current situation was not the result of any one individual or board dropping the ball.

"You can slide the blame in any direction." he said. "None of us has been as aggressive in attacking the problem in the last two years as we should have been. We could play the blame game forever and a day. We need to enforce the ordinances we have."

On that last point there was general agreement.

"Basically we have a good ordinance, but we have to enforce it," said selectman Wayne Hakala. Board Chairman Fred Henderson agreed. "I'd like to see Moratorium dies

The moratorium, Roberts argued, would give the town time to revise its ordinances to deal with the new realities of the real-estate market.

But Henderson and Hakala did not think such a move was warranted.

Henderson said a moratorium could create more problems than it solves.

"It tends to back things up and when it cuts loose you're in worse shape than before," he said.

Roberts made a motion proposing a moratorium, but it went unseconded. The selectmen and planners land.

in 2001, warren took notice of the changing times and created the Western Mountains Foundation to revive the corporation's original goal.

He proposed a 180-mile trail along a stretch of forest land from Newry to Rockwood, met with the 15 landowners along it, and never looked back.

'It became obvious public New York-based Community access as we have known it is probably in jeopardy," Warren said. "Given the changing face of land ownership, we felt we ought to make a concerted effort to see if we can buy easements, to try to execute the vision.

So far, the foundation has secured one of the hut sites in Carrabassett Valley and an easement on 12 miles of frontage on Brassua Lake, from John Willard, owner of the Birches Resort in Rockwood.

And this fall, Warren expects to complete the acquisition of almost 100 miles, starting at Moosehead Lake, and to secure about half of the $9 million needed for the entire project.

With the recently hired

Counseling Service having raised $1 million in its first, month of fundraising work, Warren is confident.

He said the foundation may begin the first phase of the Maine Huts and Trails system as early as next summer with the construction of three large cabins along a trail connecting Carrabassett Valley to Flagstaff Lake.

Tom Dodd, forest manager with international Paper, said his company agreed in principal to an easement over about eight miles along the Dead River, south of Flagstaff Lake, largely because of Warren.

The "Bird of the Week" is not a bird. The hummingbird moth is our choice. Every year in July we welcome this sweet little creature visiting our gardens. They are similar to a large "bumble bee," but act like a hummingbird. Nectar is extracted from the flowers with a long recoiling tube. They do not whiz about like the hummers, but methodically visit each blossom. They seem tame but avoid any touch. The moth is quite capable of zipping through the air at 30 miles per hour. The Way I See It

by Sharon Bouchard

Sharon Bouchard's column is published by special arrangement with the Advertising Department

I spent this past weekend at war with the weeds that are dominating my beautiful flower gardens - the weeds are winning the war.

I really, really, really HATE weeding. It's a mind-numbing, backbreaking, kneecramping job. Some misguided philosopher once said that work well done never needs doing over. I can guarantee you that Mr. Philosopher never did housework or weeded a garden.

The abundance of rain this summer has created the perfect growing conditions for weeds of all kinds. They thrive in the moist soil and the gardener can't get out in the rain to pull them. They seem to know this and take advantage of it. I am convinced that weeds, especially crabgrass grows at least 10 times faster than the average flower.

I think the weeds are having a worse effect on me than they are on my flower beds. They make me feel guilty every time I pass my aster garden on my way to the car. It's almost as if they're mocking me.

Their weedy little voices penetrate my brain. "Ha, ha, you're on your way to work, you can't touch us now in your nice clean clothes." And later in the day it's "Ha, ha, you can't touch us now because you have to cook a meal and do laundry."

By the time Saturday morning arrived sunny and dry, I was fed up with the laughing, noxious growths and decided to spend the day launching an all out attack in my "garden of weeden."

Some people believe in talking to their plants and I can understand that because I firmly believe in swearing at the weeds. After an hour or so of digging, pulling and cursing, I was quite amazed at how little progress I had made and how much my language skills had disintegrated.

I even started calling the weeds by name. Not their botanical names, which I don't know, but by the names of any person that I could think of who has ever caused me a moment's grief. Old classmates I didn't get along with out! Ex-boyfriends of days gone by - out! Past bosses who had ever given me a hard time at work and even my husband for every disagreement we've ever had. Out they came and unceremoniously dumped on the weed heap.

I think the weeds are having a worse effect on me than they are on my flower beds.

There are those who feel that gardening is good therapy, and I can testify to the fact that weeding is definitely a good way of working out any aggressions you may have been surpressing.

I did reserve some sensitivity for the flowers that I inadvertently pulled out and promptly made an apology to, but for the weeds I held no restraints whatsoever.

Ralph Waldo Emerson said a weed is a plant whose virtues have not yet been discovered. I think he was wrong. The virtue of weeds that I discovered was a productive way to transfer any anger or hostility that one may have smoldering within.

As evening rolled around I was a very calm and serene individual. I didn't protest or say a single negative word throughout the evening even while Henry channel surfed the night away. Of course, I was close to comatose from a full day of weeding in the hot sun, but be that as it may, I was feeling no sense of aggres-

My aggression had been fully depleted on the crabgrass. What in heck was Mother Nature thinking when she came up with crabgrass? Was that a PMS day when she said, "I'm going to create a completely worthless, ugly plant that will grow under any conditions within nanoseconds."

I swear that I completely cleaned out an area of crabgrass growth only to see it growing again in the very same spot before I had even had the opportunity to discard its dead cousins.

When it comes to crabgrass I have to agree with columnist Dave Barry who once wrote, "Crabgrass can grow on bowling balls in airless rooms and there is no known way to kill it that doesn't involve nuclear weapons."

That also applies to bamboo of which my backyard has been taken over with. It's not a true bamboo, but that is what we call it in Maine when we aren't calling it something unprintable.

Once I found a gardening chat room on the Internet, and I asked if anyone knew how to get rid of bamboo. One answer was to call in the National Guard and request an air strike. Someone else suggested a good dose of Agent Orange. My favorite suggestion was just one word, "MOVE." I of course didn't and I still have the bamboo.

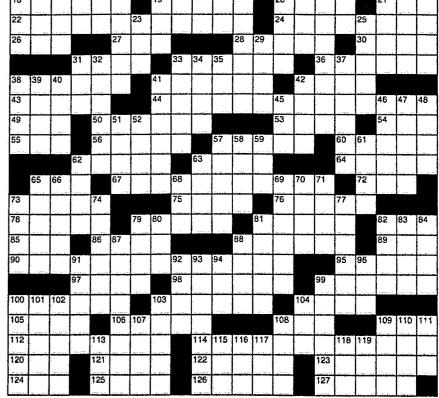

I guess I can take some comfort in knowing that weeds are the nemesis of everyone with a garden. Whether it's flowers or vegetables, we all work hard at trying to nurture the plants and rid the weeds in hopes of a bountiful harvest or aesthetic beauty.

The way I see it this war of the weeds will go on all summer and the best I can hope for is to keep one step ahead of the crabgrass and just "weed em and reap. Sorry, I couldn't resist.

Bertha DeHaas Our most sincere condolences go out this week to the family of Albert Penley Sr. He was truly a pillar of our town. When I was a little girl, he was one of the owners of Penley's Mill, and my father's boss and good friend. He and Dad were both staunch Red Sox fans. I remember one of the horses Albert had by the name of "Foxy Grapes." She was as beautiful a horse as you could ever see and she ran like the wind. I remember going to Albert and Marietta's house, as a child, with my Dad. Their son, Albert Jr. and his wife Charmaine live on High Street and Douglas (his grandson) and his wife Michelle (and his great-grandson, Tyler) live on the Greenwood Road here in West Paris. I enjoyed going up and chatting with Albert Sr., especially about books and Alaska. He sure will be missed by us all. Albert and my Dad were always good friends. My thoughts and prayers are with the family. On Saturday afternoon, several of us had the pleasure of taking part in the Poetry Reading on the steps of the Norway Public Library as part of the Norway Art Summer Festival. This was a great deal of fun. Earlier, Lona and Bill Bedard and David Sanderson performed at the "Weary" Club, further up Main Street, commemorating the memory of Mellie Dunham (Lona's grandfather).

On Sunday evening, at the West Paris Baptist Church, we had the pleasure of listening to our missionaries to Thailand, Mike and Sue Haney, as they told us of their work over there. Their endeavors are both with teaching English and teaching the Bible in Bangkok and the surrounding areas. Sue has a prison minto go pay a visit with her hus- istry as well. They set up a band Ras at his retirement display with photos of a map and two photo albums for us Almost right away we were to peruse, and to see what it slowed down by the road work- is like over there. gardens are in ecstasy. Tasha and I prefer it a little cooler. David loves the heat but could do with less humidity. The garden, however, is looking lush and green.

We are eating broccoli, hot peppers and lettuce and radishes. Soon the chard will be up. The squash plants look lush but no flowers as of yet. Probably too early and too hot. Carrots are coming. Tomatoes are ripening. All else is still green. The corn even got knee high by the 4th of July and is now waist high — that is some of it is. Albany by Dana & Sheila Dyke Greetings and hello from Albany Township, We understand that the sun peaked through this weekend (we were away) for a rather nice weekend, with a downpour and high winds later Saturday evening. All over we keep hearing people wishing and hoping for actual summer weather. It's bound to happen it is, after all, summer. The lawns are all looking very green (gotta think positive).

There have been a lot of turkey sightings, along with their little ones, out in the fields, on the sides of the roads, crossing the roads. Wendy Meader told Sheila the other day that she and Max spotted a bunch of adults and their babies in the fields near her home, and they looked like big spots on the ground. These turkeys are big birds, so, you'll want to be careful when driving. They can do some damage to your vehicle.

The Albany Church's supper will be held this Thursday, July 22, starting at 5:30 p.m. You will want to be sure to give yourself plenty of time as it is usually filled to capacity before 5:30. There usually is a second seating, so, if you miss the 5:30 seating, there will be another at 6 or so. The cost is $6 per adult, $3 per child. It's worth the price — wonderful home-cooked meals and fresh baked pies.

As we mentioned, we went to Connecticut this past weekend for a CMA rally. Dana rode his bike; Sheila drove her car. Sheila missed riding her

West Paris

Perham Road off High Street has turned into a wildlife park. A large bear visits often. Peg and Joe Perham have removed their birdfeeders in hopes of discouraging the bears, but they still come. Granddaughter Meryl and great-granddaughter Naiya from Florida were well entertained last week when the bear showed up at 8 a.m. and put on a good show for all. He drank from the birdbath and then sat in the flowerbed.

Turkeys are plentiful on three adults and about 20 young ones. Granddaughter Jara Givinski and greatgranddaughter Nadja are looking out for the Perham house while Joe and Peg are in Alaska. They left Friday morning early and plan to drive across Southern Canada and up the coast to Alaska. Richard and Mona Grover and Snuffy will accompany them. If all goes well they will spend several weeks in Alaska and be back in September. All wish them a good vacation. Beverly and Vince Stevens and Georgia Thayer spent the weekend in Wilson's Mills at Aziscoos Camp Grounds visiting with Beverly and Roger

At the West Sumner Universalist Church on Sunday, July 25, Dr. Kenneth Hamilton will speak on "What's New." A social hour follows.

The black-eyed susan that grows up through the hot top between the garage doors is again doing very well. There are a dozen blossoms fully out with about 20 buds swelling ready to do their thing. Two years ago it was tall and full of blossoms, but only grew to about three inches tall with few blossoms last summer. I have no idea what makes it expect it to do much this year but it surprised me.

- Visit with their incredible work force. Be the first to try your hand at the latest craze in Bethel: sluicing. This is a collaboration between BOA and Mountain Mann Jewelers. It is a way to showcase and try something that has been a hallmark of this region for decades. Jim Mann will be available to explain all you find.

Try a little "trail mix" while we chat on the porch.

- Witness and chat with the crew of H. E. Sargent as they relax with us over a pig roast. Try a kayak. The fastest growing water sport, and we have a great location to practice. Easy access, good swift water, a few rocks and eddies and eddy lines. Great fun.

—Take a swim in the river. Only the brave will do this, but they will be rewarded.

It's hard to believe that another Mollyockett Day has come and gone...but the chamber would like to commend Vicki Rackliffe and the Mahoosuc Arts Council for doing such a great job. Our chamber events were a great success and you will see two thank-you ads, grow or not grow. From the

Mundt-Allen Post

On Tuesday evening, July 13, Bethel Post 81 held its annual recognition dinner honoring this year's Boys' and Girls' State delegates. Seven of the eight delegates sponsored by the post from the SAD44 area were present with family members and friends. Girls' State delegate Jessica James was unable to attend due to out-of-state employment, but reported her experience to be very rewarding.

In addition to the students, Ross Parker, Megan Bailey, Matthew Mills, Anika Barton, Frank Emerson, Clayton Smith and Lauren Barletta, the post also welcomed the American Legion State of Maine Department commander, Gene Bickford, and his wife Joyce; American Legion Auxiliary District 2 President Edith Lemieux and her husband Ray and American Legion Oxford County Commander Jerry Greenwell, and his wife Jeri.

Prior to the dinner, Post Commander Richard Farren, led the group in the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag, following presentation of a flag sent to the post by member Ernie Aguilar now serving in Iraq. That was followed by reading of a poem about the flag, written by Ernie.

After the dinner, Americanism officer Don Feeney conducted a question and answer session with the delegates concerning their experiences and perceptions of the Boys/Girls by the whole community. Oxford County Democrats

The Oxford County Democrats provided a major presence at Bethel's Mollyockett Day Parade on Saturday, with two floats, and more than 30 participants of varied ages marching and riding. Senator Bruce Bryant and Representative John Patrick led the contingent, accompanied by Tim Trafford of the Michaud for Congress campaign, Tim Carter of Bethel, candidate for the House of Representatives, and Cathy Newell, Oxford County Democratic chairperson.

Throughout the day the Democrats welcomed people to their booth on the common, which was stocked with a variety of materials from the John Kerry campaign, Mike Michaud's campaign and the local races. Booth volunteers included Cathy and Charlie Newell, Tim and Jodi Carter, and Mike and Eileen Broderick. Henry and Pat Stewart provided logistical support in setting up the booth. Upcoming events for the county Democrats include the County Democrats meeting on Thursday, July 22, at the Mexico Town Hall at 5:30 p.m. for potluck supper and 6:30 p.m. for the meeting; the caucus for District 100 on Friday, July 23, at 6:30 p.m. at the Otisfield Town Hall; and several Kerry/ Edwards house parties on Thursday, July 29. For information on the house parties, see www.johnkerry.com.
